ABSTRACT

This directory consists of profiles of more than 500 companies and organizations which responded to a West Virginia Education Fund survey during the summer of 1990. The purposes of the directory are: (1) to provide a reference that helps educators locate resources from business, industry and community groups; (2) to initiate and facilitate cooperation between schools and businesses; and (3) to help corporations and community organizations discover opportunities for direct involvement in improving education. Each entry includes the name of the company or organization, address, the contact person and phone number, a summary of educational services, resources, and financial aids available to schools, and other administrative information. The directory is organized by the following general categories: (1) Arts and Cultural Organizations; (2) Community Service Organizations; (3) Educational Institutions; (4) Financial Institutions; (5) Food Services; (6) Government Agencies; (7) Manufacturers and Procedures; (8) Media and Advertising; (9) Medical and Health Services; (10) Retail Goods & Professional Services; (11) Travel and Leisure; and (12) Utilities. Also provided is an index grouping the profiles according to Regional Education Service Agency regions so teachers may easily locate educational services and resources available within their geographic areas. Private Support for Public Education

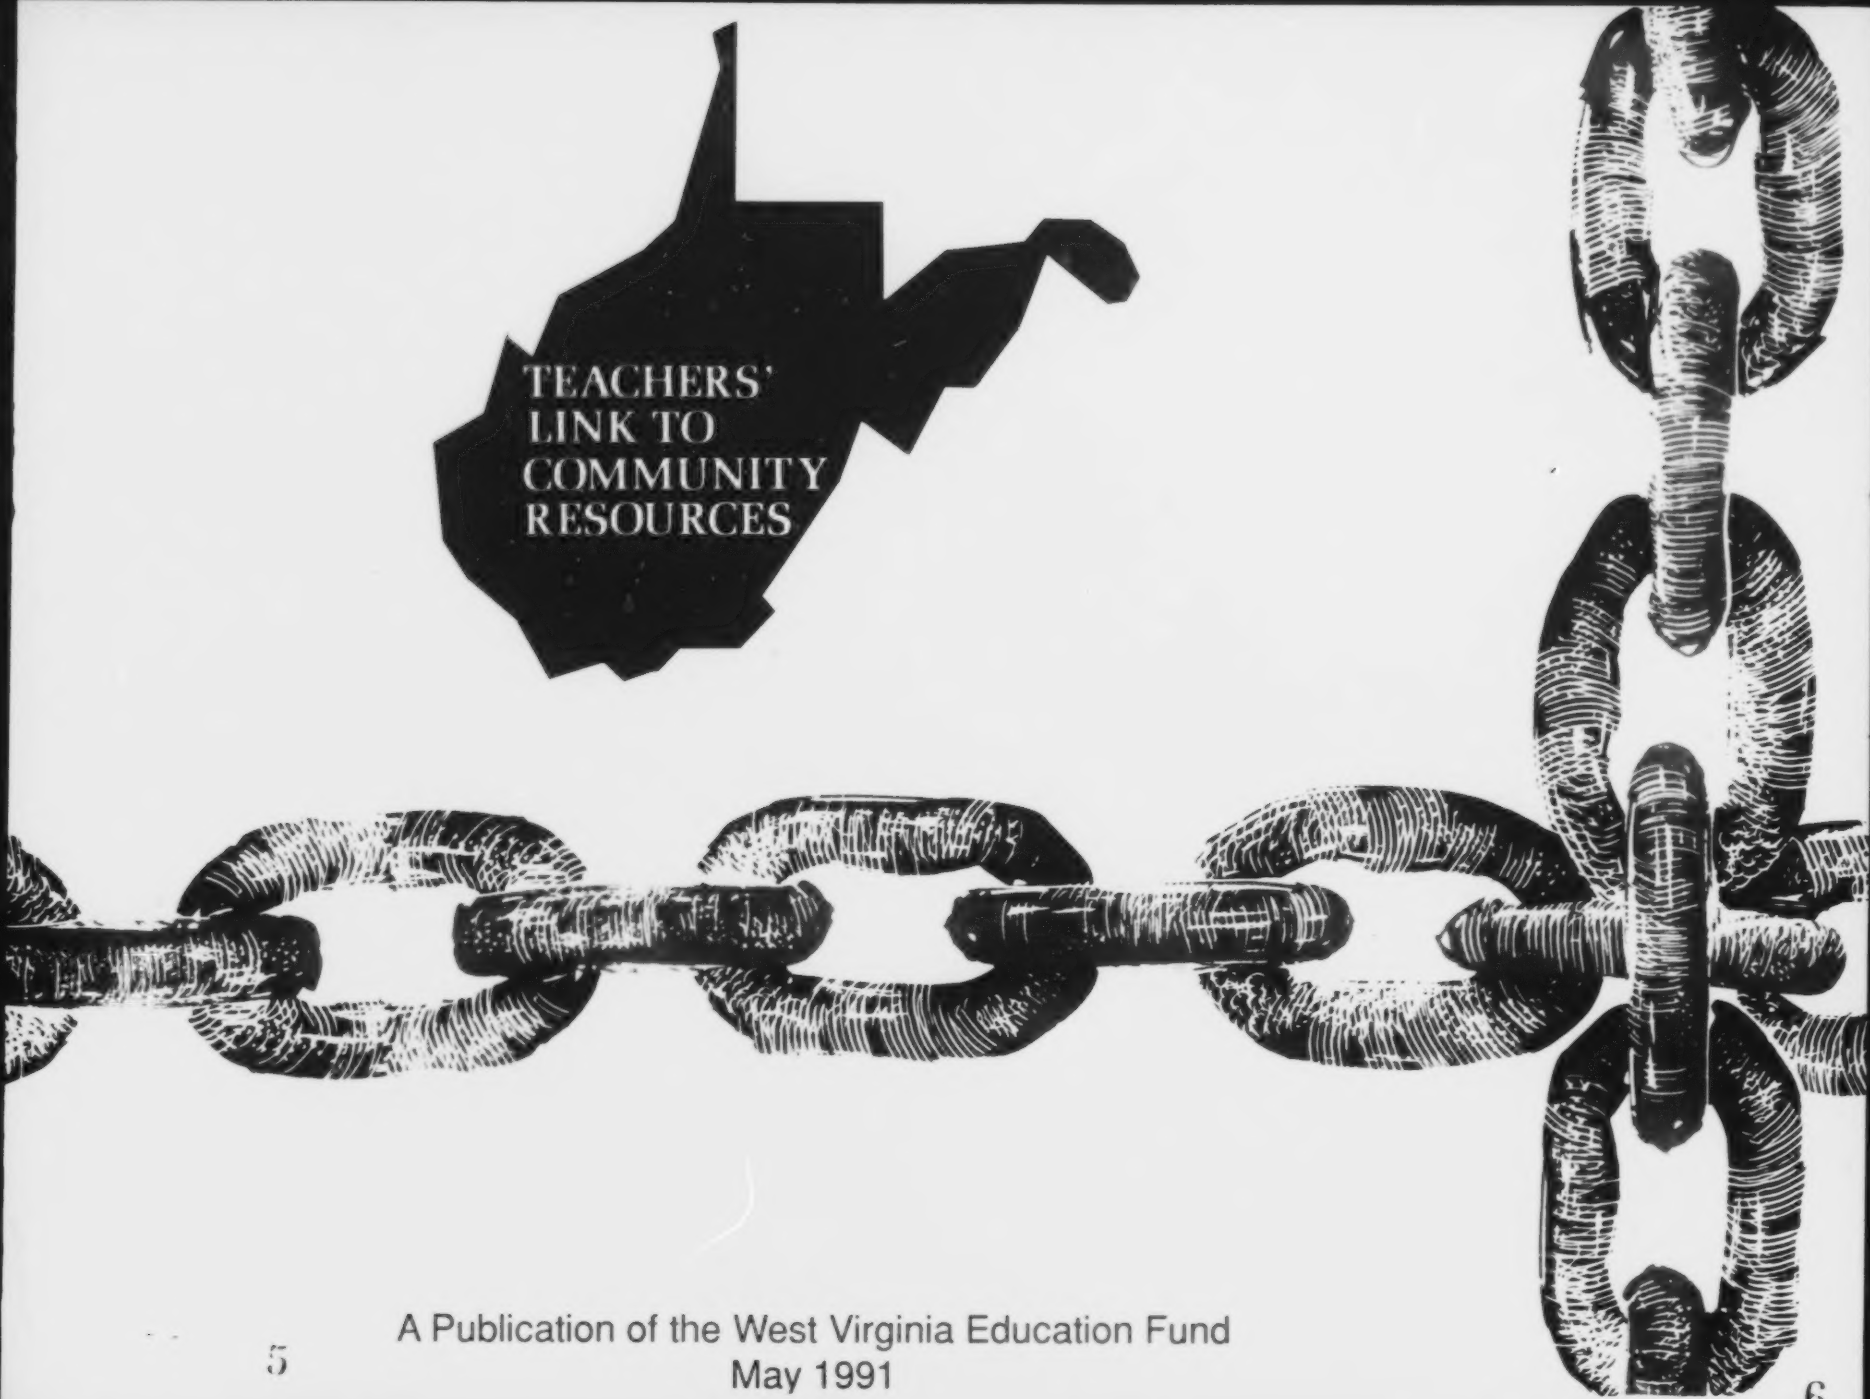
BEST COPY AVAILABLE

A Publication of the West Virginia Education Fund

The Education Fund would like to offer a special thanks to the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation for a grant for the research, compilation, publication, and distribution of Teachers' Link To Community Resources.

The Education Fund truly appreciates all the technical and financial support, leadership, and inspiration the Benedum Foundation has provided since the Education Fund was founded. The Benedum Foundation's continuous involvement has been extremely important to the Education Fund's efforts to improve the learning experiences of West Virginia's school children.



TEACHERS' LINK TO COMMUNITY RESOURCES

May 1991

Preface

Since 1983, the West Virginia Education Fund, a private, non-profit organization, has provided a vehicle for businesses and community organizations to become involved in improving the quality of public education in the state. Through its Minigrants for Classroom Projects, Partnerships in Education, Outstanding Educator Merit Awards and College Bound programs, the Education Fund has channeled the skills and resources of thousands of volunteers into statewide networks of private sector support for the public schools. Among the Education Fund's most recent initiatives are projects which fund innovative efforts to boost college attendance and parental involvement in education.

The collaboration of private sector groups with the public schools has yielded significant benefits. Among them are improved teacher morale, increased college attendance, greater public involvement in public education, and reduced isolation of the schools from their communities. At the same time, this community commitment is helping to build a broad, new constituency for public education, as growing numbers of people touched by these efforts realize the link between quality schools and the economic health of their state.

In a desire to increase opportunities for community involvement in the schools, the Education Fund has launched another project which is intended to expand private sector participation in public education. Through a grant from the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation, the Fund has compiled Teachers' Link to Community Resources. This directory consists of profiles of more than 500 companies and organizations which responded to an Education Fund survey during the summer of 1990. Each profile includes a brief sketch of the business or organization, a summary of educational services and resources available to schools, and the name of a person to contact for these services and resources.

Purposes

The purposes of Teachers' Link to Community Resources are:

1. To provide a reference that helps educators locate resources from business and industry or other community groups to augment their curricula, train their teachers, sponsor projects, and offer scholarships and awards to students.

2. To initiate and facilitate cooperation between schools and businesses/organizations that share interests and priorities.

3. To help corporations and community organizations discover opportunities for direct participation in improving public education, thereby allowing them to use time and resources more efficiently.

The Education Fund hopes that thoughtful and imaginative use of the directory by county school superintendents, school principals and, above all, classroom teachers, will enhance existing programs and methods of teaching and learning, as well as prompt new ones. In the long term, it is hoped that an increased level of meaningful participation in the schools by companies and community groups, both large and small, will produce significant reforms in the public education system, and consequently, an improved economic climate for the state.

Methodology

Work on Teachers' Link to Community Resources began in June 1990 and culminated in its publication in mid-1991. A mail survey was determined to be the most appropriate method of gathering information for the company and organization profiles. Lists of survey recipients were derived from the Education Fund's Partnerships in Education mailing lists, the West Virginia Manufacturing Directory, and state and local Chambers of Commerce membership lists.

Survey recipients were asked to provide first a sketch of their company or organization which included:

1. Company or organization name
2. Industry or field (chemical, financial, medical, etc.)

3. Areas of expertise (science, math, arts, etc.)
4. Number of local employees
5. Parent company
6. Grade level preference (K-6, 7-9, 10-12)
7. Program preference (dropout prevention, student achievement, college or career awareness, etc.)

Next, the recipients were to supply the name, title, mailing address, and phone number of a person within their organization who may be contacted by educators with requests for educational services and resources.

The following section of the survey gave respondents an opportunity to list briefly the "Educational Services" (support in the form of employee time and expertise) which they currently provide to schools or would be willing to provide if asked. Services such as classroom speaking, plant or office tours, and science fair judging were listed in this category. Under "Educational Resources," respondents listed the loan or donation of equipment, materials or facilities, or the provision of incentive items. Next, respondents described their financial support in the form of scholarships and awards. The survey also asked respondents to indicate whether they have a school-business partnership through the West Virginia Education Fund. Finally, respondents were given the option of including a brief comment on community support for public education.

Survey Results

More than 500 profiles of businesses and community organizations were developed from the information provided through the survey. The companies and groups represented in this directory are by no means the only ones offering assistance to the state's public schools; they are simply the ones which responded to the survey. On the other hand, the survey is not intended to be a catalog of everything a company has to offer, but rather to provide assistance in matching community resources with schools' needs. Neither does a grade level or program "preference" mean that an organization will refuse to help other grades or programs. It means they are expressing a preference, not necessarily a restriction. This first-time directory, though extensive in the variety and location of the resources and services it contains, is not exhaustive.

The directory is organized by the following general categories:

1. Arts & Cultural Organizations
2. Community Service Organizations
3. Educational Institutions
4. Financial Institutions
5. Food Services
6. Government Agencies
7. Manufacturers & Producers
8. Media & Advertising
9. Medical & Health Services
10. Retail Goods & Professional Services
11. Travel & Leisure
12. Utilities

Also provided is an index grouping the profiles according to RESA Regions I through VIII so teachers may easily locate educational services and resources available within their geographic areas. The index is located in the back of the publication.

This publication is made possible in part with assistance from Ashland Oil, Inc.

The West Virginia Education Fund, founded in 1983, is the nation's first statewide public education fund. It is a private, non-profit, business-led, and business supported organization designed to bring the resources and expertise of the private sector together with the knowledge and creativity of the school system.

The Education Fund recognizes and encourages excellence and creativity in teaching and promotes a better understanding of the preparation students need for success in a rapidly changing world. The Education Fund's programs include Minigrants for Classroom Projects, Parental Involvement Awards, Partnerships in Education, and College Bound.
